

NO INTEREST IN NEW JITNEY LAW

Street Railway Company Did Not Suggest New Ordinance

RAISE NO OBJECTION

Can't Carry Out Recommended Improvements, However.

Under Present Conditions

The law is now in effect, and no one seems interested in carrying it into operation or making a change.

This, as it was "supposed" to be, President Roosevelt's idea of a new and better way of running public transportation. It is based on the idea of making such an improvement by legislation in the Congress, and it is believed that a bill will be introduced in the House of Representatives.

The most interesting part of the proposed ordinance is the fact that it is to be carried out by the street railway companies, as a result of the improvements that have been made in the general plan of urban transit, including transportation, under existing laws, from the time they were first enacted to the present moment.

Commission Makes Report

The Commission on Transportation, which is investigating the situation, has recommended that the city of Tulsa make additional regulations for the protection of passengers, including restrictions on the use of automobiles.

The commission has recommended that the city should do something to lessen the transportation of street passengers, and new and additional regulations.

The further said that the Tulsa Street Railway company could not be expected to carry out the recommendations entirely unless the city would do something to lessen the transportation of street passengers, and new and additional regulations.

The commission was unable to agree on what steps had been taken in the litter promotion. They said, as far as had been prepared, an ordinance which would not allow houses under one-half mile regulation. The commission had purchased considerable additional equipment to handle the traffic in case of an emergency along Federal lines. To this greater the circumstances, the street car company could not reasonably object.

Railway Will Not Interfere

President Roosevelt holds to the position that the company has no right to interfere with any selected parts of the city not covered by street lines. The company has purchased considerable additional equipment to handle the traffic in case of an emergency along Federal lines.

The commission's principal objection to the advertising is the exaggerated claims made by the company to the recent severe upsurge together with its appeal for donations. Lettuce questions the company's authority as a building and loan association, to accept donations. The advertisement contains an argument to the effect that the company is also skeptical as to the merits of the company, as stated to the committee.

The advertisement which started the investigation, and which was placed before the reconstruction committee, Tuesday, reads in part as follows:

"My Dear Friends: I am sorry that you have heard of the disaster that fell upon us during the unfortunate trouble here. Nearly ten thousand homes have been destroyed, and between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 worth of property burned.

"The entire business section in the colored part of Tulsa, Okla., was destroyed by fire along with the homes, buildings, stores, etc.

"These poor people must have homes in which to live before winter. Thus it becomes necessary to get busy at once, in reconstruction of the many homes destroyed.

"We are sure that you will give something to help something in this city, and the welfare committee will thank you for any aid that you can or will give."

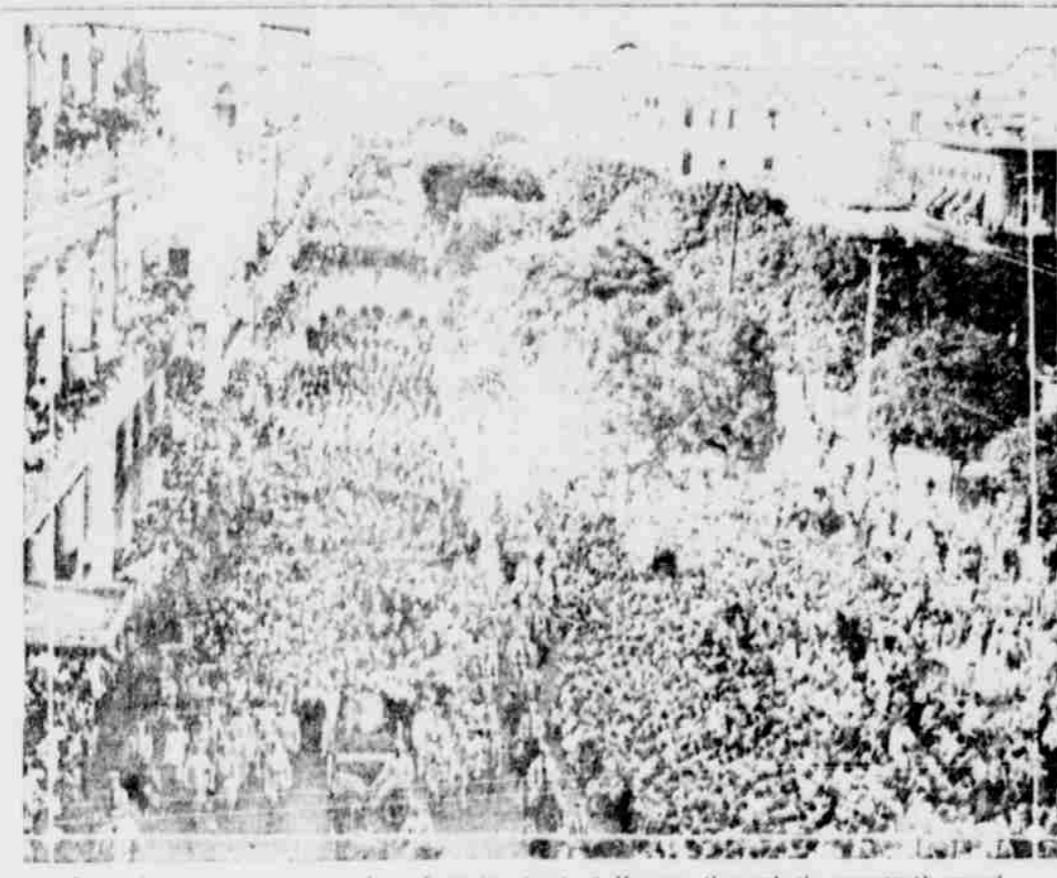

"Money placed in me will be loaned through the Protective Investment Building and Loan Association, for the rebuilding of homes for the people. This association will receive money from people at one cent interest on the dollar. You can buy shares in the association and pay cash on the installment plan, which will add greatly in the reconstruction of the homes."

"It is never safe," said Malone, "to estimate crop production here until the season is over. We have a long growing season, and a variety of crops, and the weather is not seldom severe enough to make it difficult to know exactly what will happen at the end of the season. The loss that I have estimated is the loss today; there is no telling what it will be if there are a few more days of such rains as we have had for the past ten days. I believe that the loss amount has been in the center, in a way, of the heavy rainfall, that while it has rained in the western part of the state, in eastern Kansas and parts of Missouri, the precipitation has been heavier here."

A MAN IN EACH JAR

The world's policemen, lawyers and judges are all to be found in one rugged little house built with a single room, a porch, a front door and a back door, and a single window, all covered in mosquito-infested curtains and streaks. Across a rough, cracked concrete floor stands a man with nothing on but a pair of shorts and a tattered shirt, his hands clasped behind his head. He is sitting on a chair, his feet propped up on a small stool, his eyes closed, his head tilted back, his mouth open. He is sleeping.

An investigation is now in progress by the Better Business Bureau of the Protective Investment Building and Loan Association, which has been incorporated under the laws of the state of Oklahoma with a capital of $25,000 and which was organized to segregate apparently for the purpose of rehabilitating the Negro area.

MUTE BOY DROWNED IN LAKE

Dives Off 14-Foot Diving Stand at Owen Park and Disappears.

While his two companions looked on, unable to render assistance, Hart Clements, 14-year-old son of E. Clements, carpenter, 121 North Cheyenne street, was drowned in the Owen park lake about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. According to reports, the lake was closed, and several boys who had been in swimming were away when Clements, who was boating in company with two chums, Carl Stahls and Eddie Ward, returned to the pond without knowledge of the guards, and Clements was the first to dive off the 14-foot diving stand. Twice he dove, and the second time he failed to bring up on the surface. The report was given to Police Officer C. L. Blome, from the body to the surface.

It is thought that the boy, 14, was swimming alone, and that he had been swimming in company with two chums, Carl Stahls and Eddie Ward, returned to the pond without knowledge of the guards, and Clements was
